

Terms and Conditions

Users of www.aic-europe.eu are subject to the following terms and conditions, plus any additional terms and conditions posted on the other pages of the site:

All items on the site are copyright of DEUTSCHE OSSTEM GmbH. This copyright includes all text, graphics, and the site design. Any reproduction or republication of the aforementioned items is strictly prohibited without written permission.

The website, www.aic-europe.eu is a dynamic website, which means that changes are made regularly. Neither DEUTSCHE OSSTEM GmbH nor its affiliated entities make any promises, implied or otherwise, about the fitness of any technique, piece of equipment, or material for a particular purpose.

DEUTSCHE OSSTEM GmbH or its affiliated entities will not be liable for any damages of any kind or loss of profits that might arise from information found upon this site, regardless of whether DEUTSCHE OSSTEM GmbH has been advised of the possibility of such damages.

The material contained on www.aic-europe.eu is offered as information only and should not be used to replace any practice, financial, accounting, legal or other professional advice that users might obtain from their own professional advisors.

Information on www.aic-europe.eu/ not be substituted for the individual judgement brought to each clinical situation by a patient's dental practitioner. The techniques and opinions presented on this site reflect the science of dentistry at a particular point in time, and users should be aware that continued research on these topics may provide new knowledge or recommendations.

DEUTSCHE OSSTEM GmbH does not, via www.aic-europe.eu/or any of its affiliated sites, encourage dentists to make any particular business decision based on issues addressed herein. Business decisions and decisions about individual patients and methods of practice are personal decisions, and the responsibility for these decisions rests upon the shoulders of the attending dental practitioner.